

PRESS RELEASE: 12 November, 2008

Rough Guide TV back for second series on Five

Rough Guide To... returns for a second series on Five on Monday 17th November at 7.30pm. The new fifteen-part part series, produced by Lion Television, will be presented by Julia Bradbury, the consumer-champion from BBC1's Watchdog, and independent film-maker, photographer, DJ and journalist Toby Amies.

Fresh from the beaches of the successful first series of Rough Guide To..., broadcast earlier this year, Five's intrepid presenters will continue to scour the globe exposing destinations that fail to live up to their hype and sharing discoveries of hidden gems around the world.

From tropical islands to weekend breaks the series will leave no stone unturned and no opinion unspoken. With the same entertaining and insightful Rough Guide view of the world, Rough Guide to... promises to liven up the UK's living rooms this coming winter.

Five's Commissioning Editor, Factual Entertainment and Features, Robi Dutta, said "Rough Guide To... has proved a hit with our viewers and it's exciting to build on this success with a second series."

Martin Dunford, one of the original founders of the Rough Guides, said: "We are delighted to be working with Five again. The Rough Guide thirst for genuine local knowledge, and witty and opinionated view of the world has made us the brand of choice for professionals and backpackers alike, and it's great to be back for a second series."

The Rough Guide To...is a Lion Television production for Five.

---Ends---

For more information contact:

Anna Paynton • 020 7010 3701 • anna.paynton@uk.roughguides.com

About Rough Guides

Rough Guides is a leading global publisher of travel information, distributed by The Penguin Group worldwide. Founded in 1982, Rough Guides now publish over 300 travel titles. Respected for their accurate, up-to-date content and informed, contemporary writing, Rough Guides also produce guides to over 60 reference books on subjects as diverse as Climate Change, The iPhone and the Internet as well as downloadable travel podcasts, podscrolls and eBooks. <http://www.roughguides.com>